I. Albeniz (1860-1909) was a piano virtuoso and we guitarists like to transcribe his music for the guitar since the spirit in it is very idiomatic for the guitar. Albeniz is quoted to once have said he preferred some of his pieces on the guitar. I tried to make a very “playable” fingering and still keeping the musical intention of the composer.

This comprehensive edition brings together all of the standard pieces in the adopted Albeniz guitar repertoire along with additional pieces that complete many of the suites and other groupings as published during the composer's lifetime. These solo arrangements were made while consulting the earliest Twelve classic pieces from one of Spain's most significant composers, Isaac Albeniz.

Isaac Albniz's Suite espaola, Op. 47, is a suite for solo piano. It is mainly composed of works written in 1886 which were grouped together in 1887, in honour of the Queen of Spain. Like many of Albeniz's works for the piano, these pieces depict different regions and musical styles in Spain. Contents 1 Origins of the suite2 The music3 Pieces4 Media5 External linksOrigins of the suiteThe work originally consisted of four pieces: Granada, Catalua, Sevilla and Cuba. The editor Hofmeister republished the Suite espaola in 1912, after Albniz's death, but added Cdiz, Asturias, Aragn and Castilla. The other pieces had been published in other editions and sometimes with different titles (Asturias was originally the prelude from the suite Chants d'Espagne).The four pieces that Hofmeister added do not exactly reflect the geographical region to which they refer. A clear example of this is Asturias (Leyenda), whose Andalusian Flamenco rhythms have little to do with the Atlantic region of Asturias. Opus 47, the number assigned by Hofmeister, does not have any chronological relation to any of Albniz's other works, since the opus numbers of the pieces were randomly assigned by publishers and Albniz himself.

Despite the spurious nature of the Suite espaola, however, it has become one of the most performed of Albniz's piano works, a favorite of both pianists and audiences. The music In these works the first title refers to the geographical region portrayed, and the title in parentheses is the musical form or dance from that region. From Granada in Andalusia there is a Serenata, from Catalonia a Curranda or Courante, from Sevilla a Sevillanas and from Cuba (which was still part of Spain in the 1880s) a Notturmo in the style of a habanera, from Castile a seguidillas, from Aragon a Fantasia in the style of a jota, and from Cadiz a saeta. This last example, like Asturias (Leyenda), is geographically inaccurate. Pieces In the works constituting the Suite espaola, the first title makes reference to the region that each piece represents and the subtitle in brackets indicates the musical form of the dance of the region. Main articles: Granada (Albniz), Catalua (music), Sevilla (Albniz), Cadiz (Albniz), and Asturias (Leyenda) Granada (Serenade) Catalua (Courante) Sevilla (Sevillanas) Cdiz (Cancin) Asturias (Leyenda) Aragn (Fantasa) Castilla (Seguidilla) Cuba (Nocturno) The suite has been orchestrated by other hands, including a well-known version by Rafael Frhbeck de Burgos. Arrangements of individual works and indeed the entire suite are often played in concert by classical guitarists. In fact, "Granada", "Sevilla", "Cadiz" and "Asturias" are more often heard on guitar than in their original piano versions; all four have been staples of the guitar literature since early in the 20th century. "Catalua" and "Cuba" became solo guitar staples in the 1980s. The remaining pieces, "Aragn" and "Castilla," have been transcribed for guitar solo but are more often heard in multiple-guitar transcriptions.
